A Whisper To A Scream ..... page 39

After the Vidlians separated B'Elanna into two separate entities, she was finally able to experience life as a Human, even if only for a short time. What did she want to experience, and was she able to return to her former self?

Notification ..... page 64

We have all heard Tom Paris' opinion of his father. But how did the Admiral really react when he found out his son was missing in space?

A Time To Mourn ..... page 67 written by Ann B. Harding
How does one handle the news of the death of a friend? Ann's story shows us how several people aboard the Voyager handled the disturbing news of Paris' death after crossing the transwarp threshold.

Walls of Brass ..... page 74

Thomas Paris bears the guilt of the incident of Caldik Prime. He can never forget it. And there are others that won't let him forget it, nor forgive the fact that he's now a commissioned officer again in Starfleet. Now, he's been asked to use his piloting skills to explore a planet in the Delta Quadrant. Is he going to prove himself to them, or is there another reason that he feels he must go?

Spectres of the Past ..... page 98

Neelix is usually the happiest person on the starship. But after Jetrel's visit, he's suddenly, and uncharacteristically withdrawn. Kes can't get him to shake his melancholia, neither can Captain Janeway. Who on board can help the morale officer? The answer might surprise you.

The Real McCoy ..... page 106 written by BEKi art by Judith Medina
What do you do when you have an emergency? On the Voyager you call for the EMH. When you have a disaster, you wish for more than one of the fantastically gifted, if pompous, EMH. But, as the old adage says, be careful what you wish for...
